Why do you keep forgetting to practise your spellings? I'm beginning to regret starting this sentence! I have always preferred to watch cartoons rather than musicals. The doctor is referring you to the hospital. What a lovely skipping rope! Can you please pass me the wrapping paper? Have you forgotten your manners? Since the eruption, the volcano site is forbidden. Whilst reading, you inferred about the character. Adam is a beginner in his swimming class.	I have been gardening all day and the garden now looks beautiful. Can I employ a gardener to help me? Billesley Primary is limiting the amount of photocopying people are able to do. There is limited access to the internet in school due to e-safety. Can you please listen when I am teaching? What has happened in here? Ahmed is a phenomenal climber. Would you like to be an engineer when you grow up? Yesterday, Miss Sadley climbed Mount Snowdon! What is happening in school tomorrow?	Non-fiction texts usually have subheadings in them. If you cut a paper in half and then cut those halves in half, you subdivide it. A submarine can submerge very quickly. A subspecies of a plant or animal is one of the types that a particular species is divided into. You can travel on the subway in New York. When you subtract, numbers get smaller. A subtitle is displayed at the bottom of a television screen. Sublime means to be of very great excellence or beauty. I have made a submission of my ideas for your perusal.	Years of human interaction with the environment has caused damage to Earth. I am going to need to intercede between you because you are arguing. Do not interfere with the electrical circuit. "If I may interject, I have things I'd like to add," said the teacher to her class. "I can't see the doctor until next month, but in the interim I'm going to try some cough medicine," said the lady to her friend. During the interlude at the theatre, Ben went to buy some sweets. Since she was very young, Casey had always wanted to be an international singing star. "I'm going to need to intervene-your debate is turning a bit heated," said the teacher to her pupils. It is important not to interrupt when somebody else is speaking. Going to nursery helps children to learn how to interact with others.
